7. Faulty routers

Routers do occasionally develop faults, but this is rare. Typically, less than 1% of returns are found to be faulty.

If we have supplied you with a router within the past 12 months, and you believe you have a fault with your router or broadband service, simply call us on 03333 204020 and one of our technical support team will conduct a series of diagnostic tests with you, which may resolve the problem.

If a potential fault is found with your equipment, Fleur Telecom will organise a replacement router to be sent to you, with a returns bag so that you do not incur any return postage charges, in order for you to return the potentially faulty router to us.

If, however, the 'faulty' router is not returned, or when returned, it is subsequently found that the equipment has been damaged, or is faulty as a result of the customer's actions, a charge of £39 may be raised on your account to cover our costs of repair and postage.

Non-faulty: If, after testing, the router is found to be non-faulty, you will receive a credit of £12.

Faulty: If, after testing, the router is found to be faulty, it will be disposed of in a WEEE compliant manner and you will receive a refund of £34.

8. Cancelled contracts – router returns

If you have placed an order with us and subsequently cancelled it before your order went live, you will receive the following partial credit. Please note, we are unable to issue a full refund for the router due to the costs we incur from our supplier in configuring and setting up the router credentials.

Unopened: If the router is returned with its packaging unopened, you will receive a credit of £24.

Opened: If the router is returned and its packaging has been opened, you will receive a credit of £12.
